Yolo High:

Principal & staffer accused of embezzlement

■ Police asked by WUSD to perform a criminal investigation

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The veteran principal and the campus psychologist at Yolo High School are both on leave while district officials investigate what they think is malfeasance at the campus. Yolo High, located on Westacre Road near the district's headquarters, serves high school students who have not adjusted well to the district's main campus, River City High School.

Principal Dean Gaumer and Psychologist Martha Henninger were both placed on leave in August, Superintendent Patrick Campbell confirmed this week. He declined to explain why the leave occurred but did confirm that internal and external investigations were under way involving the campus.

"There are situations that occurred that came to my attention that needed to be addressed," said Campbell. "It's a whole variety of things. People came forward and brought up issues – some we can investigate ourselves, and some issues we referred to other agencies."

He declined to specify the nature of any of these "issues," and said that an audit was ongoing.

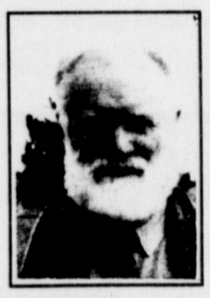

When might the district know when – and if – any wrongdoing was committed?

"We're hoping to finish things within the next month, at the latest," answered Campbell.

Police Lieutenant Bruce Muramoto said his department had been contacted by Washington Unified School District to perform an investigation regarding issues at Yolo High School – but he declined to confirm the names of the suspects, citing the lack of arrests and tenuous information available so far.

"The school district came to us regarding two individuals and the possibility of the embezzlement of items and school property," said Lt. Muramoto. "The investigation right now is pending information from the school district after an audit. They need to provide us with information on whatever they believe has been stolen or embezzled."

Muramoto said police have looked at items in storage on district property, but have not served search warrants – or arrest warrants – at anyone's home in connection with the case.

Several attempts by the News-Ledger to reach Gaumer by phone at his home for comment were not successful. An attempt to reach Henninger was likewise unsuccessful.

A WUSD spokesperson yesterday said Gaumer was hired by the district in September of 1969, making him a 35-year veteran of WUSD. She declined to say how long Gaumer had been principal of Yolo High School on Westacre Road – but outside sources say Gaumer has been at the helm of Yolo High for well over a decade.

The WUSD spokesperson said Henninger was hired by the district in 1979, making Henninger a 25-year district employee. The WUSD spokesperson declined to say how long Henninger had served at Yolo High.

Superintendent Campbell said yesterday that several employees are helping to cover the duties left behind by the pair placed on leave. Classes started at the campus last month.

"The teachers have requested somebody to be at the campus full-time, though, and we are working on that," added Campbell.

Port of Sacto: the next step

■ Port will continue losing money if somebody doesn't invest millions, consultant says

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

As one more sign of crisis – or opportunity – the West Sacramento City Council and Port of Sacramento governing board held a rare joint meeting Monday evening to listen to a consultant's report on the future of maritime operations at the ailing local port.

Spearheaded by the Parsons Brinckerhoff firm, the new report essentially said that the best hope to improve the port's cargo volumes was to dredge the shipping channel deeper to allow larger ships, while courting a new cargo: bulk cement. Rice and some other commodities still have a role to play, they added, but many of the port's traditional agricultural shipping markets just aren't dependable anymore.

Consultant Don Grigg made the case for the multi-million dollar channel-deepening project, long-planned to bring the depth from 30 feet to 35 feet and allow bigger ships to visit:

"Without channel deepening, Sacramento will remain in a difficult competitive position," said consultant Don Grigg. "The key cargoes affected by our current depth (include) fertilizer, lumber, wood chips, wheat and import cement."

These cargoes tend to go aboard larger, deeper-draft vessels, while some cargoes like rice are usually shipped in smaller lots that more easily make it into the port.

Total facilities improvements at the port could cost about $53 to $84 million, he said. While the federal government and other sources could pick up most of the tab, about $20-$30 million would have be generated at the local level.

Grigg said that without investment, the port would see future cargoes generating around $2-$8 million in annual revenues – "which is not sustainable." Making enough improvements to accommodate cement shipping might add another $400,000 to $500,000 annually – or bring the facility into "questionable" sustainability. Paying for channel deepening plus other facilities improvements, though, could more than double annual tonnage while leading to financial "sustainability probably on the high side."

The outstanding question is whether local government leaders and private business interests are willing to come up with needed investment, said Grigg. Lobbying the federal government for contribution and considering a bond proposal were among the available options, he said.

Grigg suggested forming a "freight mobility round table" consisting of the port, businesses, the Sacramento County of Governments and others to help lobby for funding. When pursuing federal money to deepen the channel, he said, "it's very important that at some point in this process the port community and city councils in all the (controlling jurisdictions) be decisive in pursuing these channel-deepening options."

Among the visitors addressing the council and port commission was Bill Huffman of Farmers Rice Cooperative, located just across Industrial Blvd. from the Port of Sacramento in West Sacramento. Huffman's organization has a $12.2 million payroll and exports about 40 percent of the rice it sells, he said.

"The rice industry continues to believe the port is very important to the Sacramento region," said Huffman, who also pledged to work for federal funds.

West Sacramentan Derek Backus of the local WS-QUAD community group said the facility only employs about 40 to 50 laborers, and the follow-up studies need to examine an option in which the port is no longer subsidized.

"There are 18 longshoremen working there and about 22 warehousemen working there," said Backus. "We're talking about investing $80 million to save 40 or 50 jobs. We ought to ask the longshoremen or warehousemen if they want to put up $15 or $20 million to save the port because as a taxpayer I don't really want to do that."

The Parsons Brinckerhoff study estimated that there are about 343 jobs "related" to the Port of Sacramento – including inland transportation, but that some of these jobs might move elsewhere if the port closes. One rival port currently saving some of the same customers is the Port of Stockton.

The maritime demand analysis did not address the question of whether millions in new investment at the Port of Sacramento is feasible or worth it. The next study stages include a land use plan and financial analysis.

The councilmembers and port commission members appeared split on whether the "no port alternative" ought to be part of the next studies.

Hit & run -- one man killed

A 68-year old security officer was killed in a hit and run accident on Cebrian Street Monday night.

West Sacramento police said that police and firefighters responded at about 9:36 p.m. to the scene of an auto-versus-pedestrian accident. They learned from witnesses that an employee of Nor-Cal Beverage who was leaving work had struck security guard Edward Berman of Woodland.

The suspect vehicle was described as a black Volkswagen Jetta, last seen westbound on Del Monte and believed driven by Vitaly Karastanov, 19. The car was later found by Sacramento police in Sacramento.

Anyone with information on Karastanov's whereabouts is asked to call 372-2461.

Riverfront blues

Sacramento bluesman Jackie Greene -- here shown in a prior appearance at the former Riverbank Music festival in West Sacramento -- will return on October 2, to headline the entertainment at West Sacramento's Neighbors Fair on the River Walk.

The fair will feature free entertainment, ethnic food and kids' activities. It will run in conjunction with the city's annual downtown "Community Day Parade." Both events are spearheaded by The West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce.

'Johns', prostitutes both targeted:

Two days of anti-prostitution sweeps net 17 arrests in city

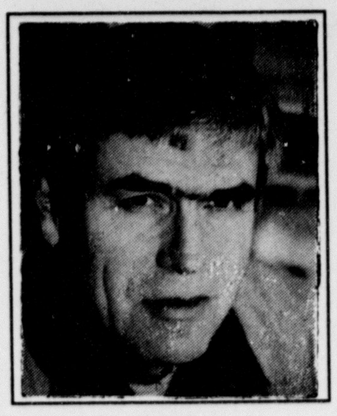

Back-to-back prostitution "sting" operations last week resulted in 17 arrests.

On Wednesday, West Sacramento officers combined with Sacramento police to contact women who appeared to be soliciting male drivers near the 600-block of West Capitol and near 5th and C streets.

Over the course of seven hours, nine subjects were arrested for prostitution-related charges. Eight were women.

Between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. the next day, a female "decoy" officer near the 1000-block of West Capitol contacted men who appeared to be looking for paid sex. Seven men were arrested, as was a female "known prostitute" jailed for interfering with an investigation.

My daughter thinks she's going bald

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Note: Daryl is taking the week off from column writing. Below is one of his favorites from the past which first appeared in the News-Ledger almost a decade ago.

Last Saturday night, my daughter stuck her head out of the bathroom and screamed, "Dad, get in here! Now!"

The terror in her voice made me leap out of my chair and rush to her side. "What's the matter?" I demanded to know, out-of-breath as she stood next to the shower with a towel wrapped around her body and another around her hair.

"Look at that!" she cried, pointing to the shower drain as she stared down with disbelief into the bathtub.

"What am I looking for, a giant spider, what?" I asked, still trying to catch my breath.

"Look at all that dead hair!" she exclaimed. "I'm going bald!"

"Is that what this is all about?" I asked with a sigh of relief. "A little hair in the drain?"

"A little hair?" she shouted, looking at me like I was blind. "The drain is completely clogged with dead hair from my head -- and this has been going on for weeks and weeks!"

"But everyone loses some of their hair when they wash it," I assured her. "It's perfectly normal."

"That's real easy for you to say," she replied. "You're not the one who is going bald! Enough is enough! I'm calling the doctor!"

"But Carrie, it's Saturday night. Your doctor's probably not even in town. Or even if he is, I'm sure he's not taking calls."

"Then I'm calling his emergency exchange. They'll have someone on call."

Having lived with my daughter for almost twenty years, I knew better than to try and talk her out of it, so I calmly sat down next to her on the couch and quietly listened in on a phone conversation that went a little something like this:

"Doctor, my name is Carrie Fisher. I'm 19 years old and in good health, but I think I'm going bald. That's right, bald! Every time I wash my hair, tons of it falls out. I find it all over my pillow, my clothes, my car seat, everywhere. I've taken to walking around with greasy hair and wearing hats. I won't let anyone touch my hair, including my boyfriend. I live in fear that someone will accidentally yank out a big chunk of it. I've bought every hair growth herb and vitamin at the store, drank gallons of water, checked out every related article in the library, read everything they have about female hair loss on the Internet, and have even considered using Louise Mandrell's hair treatment for old women who have bald spots." She paused for a moment, took a deep breath, and with great difficulty, added, "And my grandmother says if that doesn't work, I'll have to buy a pretty Eva Gabor wig."

As Carrie listened nervously to what appeared to be a reassuring voice on the other end of the line, I thought back to my teenage years when I had often worried that I might end up like my poor dad, who had lost almost all of his thick, wavy auburn hair by the age of 21. According to family lore, he had apparently tried everything known to man to reverse the process, including rubbing in gallons of Witchhazel and globs of every miracle salve on the market. He even shaved his head, hoping that all his hair would grow back the way it once was if it just had a fresh start. Unfortunately, nothing seemed to work, and as sad as my mom and everyone felt for him, I can still remember how incredibly relieved I was to find out that baldness is passed down through the genes of the mother, and not the father.

"So, what'd he say?" I asked my daughter when she finally hung up the telephone.

"He thinks I may be stressing out a bit."

"Oh, really?"

"Yeah, over my college classes or because I have a new boyfriend, or maybe a combination of the two."

"Well, I guess that could be," I said. "I remember reading somewhere that hair comes and goes in cycles. I think it grows for about seven years, dies off, gradually falls out, and then replaces itself. Maybe you're just at the end of one of those cycles."

"Yeah, the doctor said something like that, too. I guess maybe I am taking this a little bit too seriously, huh?"

"Maybe just a little."

"Okay, I'll try to chill out about it, but you gotta promise me something."

"Sure, you name it."

"You gotta make my brothers stop calling me Kojak."

'The rest of the story'

What if the appraisal value is too low?

DRE Lic. #01010462
David Trussell

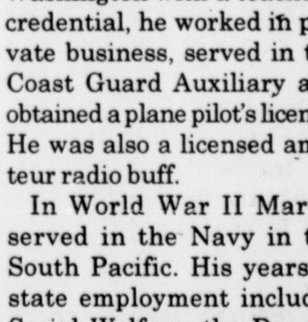

The joy and anticipation of owning a new home are sometimes crushed when the application for mortgage financing is turned down by the lender. If your loan request has been denied, one of the possible reasons for rejection could be that the appraised value of the property is too low.

A primary factor considered by lenders is the ratio of the loan amount to the sale price or the appraised value of the property, whichever is lower. If the appraisal is substantially lower than the purchase price of the property, the loan-to-value ratio (LTV) may be higher than the lender can approve. A low appraisal may make your requested loan too large if you have applied for a maximum loan amount of 90 to 97 percent of the purchase price. Your alternatives in this situation will depend upon the reasons for the low appraised value.

If the purchase price is higher than the prevailing prices in the area, you can try to re-negotiate the price with the seller. If this is not possible and you really want the house, your only solution may be to accept a lower loan amount.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

NFL Action

It was a bad opening weekend for both Bay Area football teams in Week 1of the NFL season. The Raiders lost in Pittsburgh 24-21 on a last second field goal by the Steelers while the 49ers were blitzed into submission by Atlanta 21-19 at Candlestick Park. The last time the Niners lost a season opener at home was in 1983 against the Eagles.

The Raiders and Niners both fought back from half time deficients to fight back and make the game close and exciting. In Pittsburgh the old veteran quarterback, Rich Gannon, missed calls, threw three interceptions and fumbled three times. But the old man did finally recover in the second half to rally the Silver & Black to a 21 tie but in the end the damage was done. Look for Kerry Collins to make his move at the first sign of another Gannon brain freeze.

The good news for the Raiders was that Sea Bass kicked his 33rd and 34th straight field goals from inside the 45 yards and Justin ("little huggy bear") Fargas looked good on a few carries as he makes his bid to become the Raiders go-to guy.

The Falcons' new coach Jim Mora Jr. blitzed the young inexperienced offensive linemen all day and actually knockout quarterback, Tim Rattay and Ken Dorsey from the game. Rattay returned with a slight concussion to rally the troops in the fourth quarter but his game tying two point conversion in the last seconds was tipped away in the end zone denying the 49ers of any overtime hope.

The good news for the 49ers was their new quick young defense that has not allowed a 100-yard rusher in 20 straight games! The defense sacked Vick four times and intercepted him once while holding the Falcons to 227 total net yards.

The Raiders will host the Buffalo Bills next Sunday (1:15 p.m.-ch.13) in their home opener. If the game isn't sold out expect another local Silver and Blackout! The 49ers will take their beat up quarterbacks into New Orleans next Sunday (10 a.m.-FOX).

I still can't believe I actually picked four winners last week as the Raiders covered the spread and the Packers, Vikings and Syracuse won outright. Week 1 will be a tough act to follow but in Week two, I like the California Bears (-6) at South Mississippi on Thursday night while in the NFL the Lions (-3 ½) will make it two in row with a win over Texas and Bengals (-3 ½) will hand the troubled Miami Dolphins their second loss. On Monday night the Vikings (+4) will give the Eagles all they can handle.

Major League Baseball

The Giants are still hanging in there for the division title and are leading the wild card race. Mr. Bonds is closing in on home run 700 has he leads them into the final month of the regular season. The Giants still have no pitching but with their run scoring machine will give the Cubs, Astros, Marlins, and the Padres a run for the wild card money. Only 2 ½ games separate this four National league teams. The Braves and Cards have their divisions locked up and the Dodgers are up 5 games on the G-Men. In the American league the Oakland A's are up a couple of games on the Angels in the West. The Twins are a lock in the Central Division while the East the New York Yankees are holding off a late run by the Boston Red Sox.

The River Cats began their best-of-five Pacific Coast League championship series on Tuesday night at Raley Field (6:30 p.m.) against the Iowa Cubs. The Iowa Cubs won the Central Division with a 79-64 record. The two teams faced each other once this season, splitting a four game series in Des Moines. Game two will be at Raley Field on Wednesday night (6:30 p.m.) then shift to Des Moines, Iowa.

Boxing News

On Saturday night Oscar De La Hoya (37-3, 29 KO's), who is 2 to 1 underdog, will meet Bernard Hopkins (44-2-1, 31 KO's) on a pay-per-view telecast that will guarantee Oscar $25 million and Bernard $8 million. Rumor has West Sacramento's Willie Jorrin (29-2-1) fighting after a 10 month layoff in an eight-rounder on October 1st at the Feather Falls Casino in Oroville. The main event will feature Sacramento' Eric Regan (23-1) defending his IBA middleweight title against Fernando Zuniga (22-7).

See ya next week!

From 'Pacific Crossings,' by Lily Gamboa O'Boyle, Acacia Corporation, NY 1994:

'Adobo is considered the national dish of the Philippines. This dish consists of chunks of chicken or pork or both cooked in soy sauce, vinegar, bay leaf, lots of garlic and whole peppercorns. The stew is allowed to cook until the meats are tender and the remaining sauce slightly thickened. Some people prefer their adobos dry, which may entail frying them afterwards, while others prefer them moist served in their original sauce. As a style of cooking, it can be applied to fowl, fish, shellfish and vegetables.'

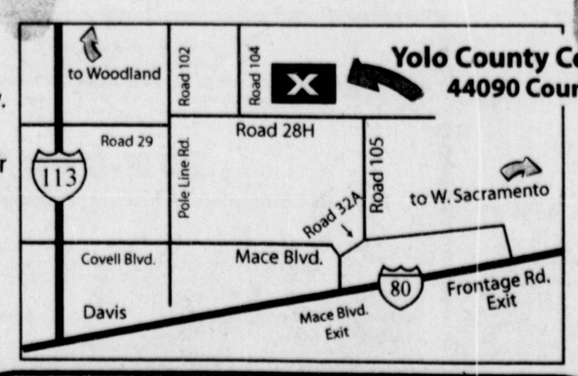

From Mark:

'My mom's adobo is a secret recipe that, although based on the recipe above, includes a few enhancements that add a slight sweetness and a savory twist that make you want more!'

Tips on Showing Your Home
For most homeowners, there are two standards of housekeeping: "every day" and "Sunday best." When preparing to market your home, the importance of keeping it "immaculately clean" can't be overstated.
Ensure your home radiates curb appeal by making the front of your house aesthetically pleasing. Mow the lawn, trim the trees and weed the garden -- remember, first impressions are the most lasting. Scrutinize the interior of your home, removing clutter and handling minor repairs. You may have learned to live with a sticky bathroom window, but to a buyer, it may signal poor maintenance. Flooring is noticed quickly, so have your carpets professionally cleaned. Remove hazards such as rolling pet toys, and bring in a third-party "nose" to sniff out odors. Air your home out and open the curtains for a light, fresh environment.
These steps will increase your home's appeal -- and your profit.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

What's behind the test score 'plateau'?

For the past few years, California's new get-tough approach to academic performance in public schools seemed to be paying dividends. Each year, students' average scores on standardized tests edged upwards. The buzzword was "accountability": schools were being held "accountable" for their pupils' performance.

Rising scores were the norm both statewide and here in West Sacramento's own Washington Unified School District. Officials at all levels were quick to trumpet the gains and to pat themselves on the back at this proof that they were improving state and local schools.

This year, the trend of rising scores stalled. Most insiders will admit that at least part of the reason for the early gains, and for this year's "plateau," was due to the early effects of "teaching to the tests." Educators under pressure to produce better student test results had been trained to adapt their curricula to closely follow what would be on the standardized tests.

There is a problem with this. You can essentially only adapt your teaching to the state tests one time. This change in educational programming can only produce one significant shift upwards in test scores, and then, when the schools' new curricula and teaching methods are firmly in place, the short-term gain must diminish. And that is what has happened.

The News-Ledger ventures the guess that most of the gains in test scores – here and elsewhere – have been due to a shift towards "teaching the test." If that is not correct, and the gains were instead due to structural improvements in education, then one can only hope that educational officials here and elsewhere will be as quick to claim credit for this year's lack of progress as they were to take credit for the previous gains. If the trend of rising scores does not resume shortly, then they must admit that they are failing where the succeeded before.

So just how do you improve how students learn, on a system-wide basis?

That is of course a terrific subject for debate. But one change that needs to be explored is the need for students themselves to have a stake in their standardized state testing results. They currently have little reason to take the tests seriously – and many don't. If the results matter to the individual student, then maybe the curriculum will matter more as well.

Remember – it's the learning process, and not test scores, that we're ultimately trying to improve.

Letters to the Editor

Changes needed

I would like to address a few issues.

First, Park Boulevard. Is the new two lane road any safer than the old four land one? Absolutely not. There is no way vehicles can maneuver the new peanut without impeding into the bike lane, making it unsafe for someone on a bike. Mr's Brown's accident happened because a driver was not paying attention. Are some vehicles still traveling 45 MPH -- absolutely -- and is that safer? No. How many accidents happened on the old four lane Park Boulevard compared to the tree accidents on the new two lane version that I know of in just one month?

In Daryl Fisher's column he wrote that someone had asked him if he thought our city council would change Park Boulevard back and he said he didn't think so. Do you know why they wouldn't consider changing it back? Because that would mean they made a mistake, and when do city councils admit to a mistake? Admitting to mistakes means liability, and liabilities mean law suits.

Second, is density a dirty word? No, as long as you are in a dense forest. High density housing without the proper emergency services is a disaster waiting to happen. We have the best fire department in the area, but our fire department is under-staffed and over-worked. These people do the best they can with what they have and do a great job, but an under-staffed fire department can be devastating to you if all our units are busy when an emergency takes place and it takes up to ten minutes for you to get the help that you need. Fire departments should never be asked to do more with less.

Here is your chance West Sacramento to make some changes. Vote in November and make those changes.

TOM MARTIN
West Sacramento City Council candidate

On political partisanship

Can you think of anything nice to say about Senator Kerry or President Bush? If the best you can muster is he would be fun to drink with or he tells great tales, then perhaps you are too partisan?

In this day, when we have a very polarized electorate, I will wager that few in either political party can find anything nice to say about their opponent. You can also say this about the candidates. Listen to President Bush speak and can he say anything nice about Senator Kerry other than he can take both sides of an issue? Listen to Senator Kerry and can he say anything nice about President Bush other than he deserves a long vacation?

People said about Mussolini that he could at least get the trains running on time, and about Hitler it was said that at least he built nice highways. These were evil men and yet something positive could be said about them. Our two major candidates for president are not evil men, therefore we should be able to find something positive to say even about the candidate we don't like.

Ask yourself if as a Republican or Democrat if you could vote for somebody of the other party. Ask yourself if you have ever said a nice thing about someone of the other party. Ask yourself if you are fair or if you are too partisan.

Against gun control

I sent this missive encouraging everyone in the United States Congress and Senate to stand fast in their decision to allow the so called "Clinton Gun Ban" to expire without a vote. After all, it's not as if the "Anti's" won't find other forums to vent their distrust of those of us who actually expect to be free to exercise our God given right (as outlined in the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, and as enumerated in what are now referred to as the Federalist Papers) to defense of self and family, state and country. That's right, the Second Amendment has absolutely nothing to do with hunting, nor any other sporting purpose, those come under the "Pursuit of Happiness" lan-

Q. I was wondering what happened to Jimmy Smits (ex-"NYPD Blue"). I haven't seen him do much on television in recent years. Thank you for any information on this fine actor. — Marcia L.

A. Jimmy Smits decided to spend some quality time doing theater in New York for a while, but he's back in films (upcoming "Star Wars: Revenge of the Sith") and has joined NBC's "The West Wing" this season as a Texas congressman who wants to be president. Smits will then join ABC in a new talent production deal with the newtork and Touchstone Television.

Q. I know Edie Falco of "The Sopranos" has breast cancer, and I was wondering how she's doing and how long she'll be undergoing treatments? P.S. I'm a breast cancer survivor and would like to pass on my best wishes to her. — Sheila A.

A. Edie Falco is doing just fine. She was diagnosed earlier this year and started treatment immediately. According to her representative, Falco had her last treatment a few months ago, and is, he says, in very good health.

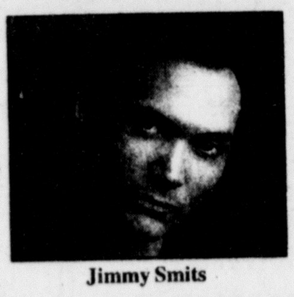

I'll pass on your good wishes. And best of luck to you.

Q. Why is Craig Kilborn leaving his late-night (CBS) television show? Also, I believe he was born in Canada (where I live), but do you know exactly where? And where did he appear before he did this show? — Roland F.

A. Craig Kilborn has hosted the "Late, Late Show" since 1999, when he replaced the late Tom Snyder. Previously, he was the host of Comedy Central's "The Daily Show," which is now helmed by Jon Stewart. Kilborn wasn't born in Canada, but close enough: in Hastings, Minn.

Kilborn decided to leave his late-night perch to devote more time to his film career. He had a hit with the Will Ferrell starrer "Old School" in 2003 and recently wrapped "Cursed" with Christine Ricci. He may also do a television series next year.

Q. On "The Apprentice," does Donald Trump really get paid for being on the show or does he use it as publicity for his (many) projects? — William D.

A. You bet The Donald gets paid. And because "The Apprentice" did so well for NBC in its first season, Trump negotiated a nice fat raise for himself for the second year.

Q. I've been told that the woman Ellen DeGeneres has had a relationship with for several years is the daughter of a well-known actor. Is this true? And has the actor ever been identified? — Jessica J.

A. Alexandra Hedison, who has lived with DeGeneres for several years, is indeed the daughter of an actor, and it's no big secret: He's David Hedison, probably best known for his starring role opposite Richard Basehart in the TV series "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," and who is currently on "The Young and The Restless."

Losing America: Confronting a Reckless and Arrogant Presidency
by Senator Robert C. Byrd
(W.W. Norton, $23.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

It's ironic that Sen. Robert C. Byrd recalls almost fondly the times when President Lyndon Johnson would summon him to the White House for an old-fashioned raking over the coals. As Byrd recalls, during his early years in the U.S. Congress there was a balance of power, and even though opinions often differed, attacks were rarely personal. All that, he claims, has changed.

According to Sen. Byrd, America faces a dangerous constitutional crisis due in no small part to George W. Bush, a president he calls arrogant and one who lied, miscalculated and led the country into an unnecessary war. Byrd, a Democrat who has represented West Virginia in Congress since 1952, is appalled by what he claims is a lack of national debate on many of the problems facing our country.

Byrd is convinced that many of the president's policies have led to a national climate that favors the rich over the poor, lavishes tax cuts on big businesses and ignores many of our most serious problems, including both the crisis in prescription drugs and the growing number of unemployed Americans.

Byrd believes the Bush administration has operated under a cloak of secrecy that is deeply antithetical to the principles of our nation. For too long, he argues, too many of us have passively gone along, aiding and abetting a dangerous process. Byrd concludes that we must regain the Constitution and return to the core values that made America a great country.

"Losing America" is a disturbing book. It is a ringing call to action by one of our longest-serving legislators. Although some may disagree with many of his major points, it is obvious that Sen. Byrd cares a great deal about our country, and his concerns should trigger a healthy, open national debate.

CRITIC'S CORNER
By D.N.A Smith

"Hero"

Running time: 96 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

Zhang Yimou, director of "Hero," must be a huge fan of Akira Kurosawa. "Hero" resembles Kurosawa's masterpiece "Rashomon," not only in the way a story is told through different points of view, but in the way that Zhang frames each shot as if it were a painting to be studied.

"Hero" is a voluptuous film. It dances with color and lyrical movement as fighters fly through the air in battles that seem more like air ballets than the run-of-the-mill chop-socky fight choreography. The art direction is breathtaking. The film has four different color themes: red, blue, white and green, and every element within each of those segments is enhanced to fit the color scheme.

The film takes place during China's feudal period. The kingdoms that had once been at war have now been united under one emperor, China's first, the King of Qin.

Jet-Li stars as a warrior who is only referred to as Nameless. Nameless has been summoned by the new emperor to receive an honor for killing three assassins bent on killing Qin: Long Sky, Broken Sword and Flying Snow.

The emperor questions Nameless about the circumstances surrounding the killing of each assassin. Nameless tells the emperor his version of events, but Qin counters with his own view.

Jet Li

As the film progresses, we begin to suspect, as the emperor does, that Nameless might not be the loyalist we originally thought. The ending, which I won't spoil, is both controversial and unexpected.

"Hero" is a beautiful, entertaining film that must be seen on the big screen in order for its grace and grandeur to be appreciated. This is one of the best films of the year.

After a week's visit at Fort Bragg Sant Steuben is at home after an enjoyable vacation.

Judy Noyes is now the proud possessor of what he calls a new Overland. It was built in 1913, but has brand new tires which he purchased at Lake Tahoe for a very easy price, so easy in fact that some of his friends believe them to have been picked up over night. At any rate it has no self starter, but then Judy has a strong back and sometimes is forced to call on a friend to push the machine along a block or two before it gets a start. Judy is going to use the car to peddle fish to Davis and Woodland people during the fishing season.

Health Officer Henry Leinberger was performing a perfectly healthy service for the community yesterday afternoon when he burned the dry grass on several blocks on Ann street. With the heat of the sun the heat of the burning grass combined to make many residents comfortable and while they said nothing openly they didn't hesitate to say among themselves that Henry was trying to keep busy.

ALTHOUGH BAILEY WON OUT IN WASHINGTON HE WAS BEATEN FOR JUDGESHIP IN COUNTY

REVEREND C. C. BLACK ELECTED TO THE ASSEMBLY OVER HIS OPPONENT, ED LEWIS, OF MARYSVILLE

Washington did its duty by Archie Bailey of Woodland last Tuesday when it gave him a vote of 237 against 101 for Judge W. A. Anderson.

Nevertheless Judge Anderson was an easy winner over Bailey through the county taking the plum with 643 votes over his opponent.

Outside of the fight for Assemblyman this was practically the only county contest that amounted to anything although the contest for Congressman was exciting.

Word from Woodland shows that Supervisor Stitt was beaten in his district as was Supervisor Smith Scott in Woodland.

The dispatch reads:

In one of the bitterest personal fights ever waged in a Yolo County supervisoral district, Hayden Stitt, present chairman of the Board of Supervisors and father of the $1,000,000 county road plan, was beaten by S. Gladney of Guinda by 129 votes, Gladney was unknown up to the time he announced himself as an opponent of Stitt.

Smith Scott, also attacked by former members of the Grand Jury on ground that he had not accounted for public moneys received by him, was also beaten by L. E. Hutchings for first place in the fourth supervisoral district. Hutchings' vote was 770 and Scott tallied 542. Mitchell was third and Captain Rodney Hill fourth, leaving Hutchings and Scott to finish the contest at the November election.

Judge W. A. Anderson was an easy winner over A. G. Bailey, clearing the line with 643 votes to the good.

William Leinberger in the first supervisoral district was elected without opposition.

Samuel M. Shortridge was easy winner over Kent and Wallace in Yolo County, according to summary tally of the votes. In appears that he had a majority here over both Kent and Wallace.

The Republican County Central Committee of 22 members has 20 Progressive members, while two are of the reactionary stamp.

United States Senator James D. Phelan, with no opposition, polled the strength of the Democratic party with a few Republicans thrown in for luck.

From present appearances it looks as if Reverend C. C. Black was elected to the Assembly over his opponent, Ed Lewis, of Marysville.

This was to be anticipated for Lewis seemed to be afraid to visit his constituents.

While on the contrary Black made a very active campaign.

To this writing the unofficial figures showing the vote in the three counties as announced today was as follows:

Republican—	Black	Lewis
Sutter	364	499
Yolo	2,039	910
Yuba	280	787
Totals	2,683	2,196
Democratic—	Black	Lewis
Sutter	210	141
Yolo	1,236	469

Two suspects fled in a vehicle that also contained a five-month old baby, leading police on a high-speed chase for several minutes before yielding. Over 2 grams of cocaine was found in the car, and two suspects in the car were arrested. A third suspect was detained at the original scene. A total of three children were taken into protective custody by Child Protective Services.

Sept. 9, 6:21 p.m.

On Third Street, a man was arrested for attacking a transient, knocking him down and kicking him in the face, causing serious injury. The victim was hospitalized.

Sept. 9, 9:38 p.m.

On Madrone Ave., an officer sttempted to stop a 1990 Oldsmobile for minor traffic violations. The car sped away, through a stop sign at Westacre and then hit a van. There were no injuries. The driver fled on foot. The car turned out to have been stolen from Sacramento.

Sept. 10, 11:10 a.m.

Sept. 10, 12:15 p.m.

Officers received a report of two subjects with a gun near 6th and James streets. They found that one had a BB gun. The other man had a misdemeanor warrant and was arrested.

Sept. 10, 1:45 p.m.

Near West Capitol and Westacre, a man told police his car had been stolen while he was inside a store. Witnesses say two suspects left a different car and took the victim's and drove it a couple of blocks away. The suspects then returned for their own car, a blue/gray Oldsmobile with a "For Sale $800" sign on it. The victim's car was recovered.

Sept. 11, 10:30 a.m.

A 1992 Geo Storm was reported stolen from the Broderick Boat Ramp.

Sept. 11, evening

Police say that at 6th and B streets, gang members were holding a large party for a fellow member who had died of a heroin overdose the prior week. Officers parked nearby heard shots fired around midnight, accompanied by yelling and whistling. The party was shut down. Officers stood by outside but did not enter. No neighbors called 911.

Sept. 11, 5:18 p.m.

On Lighthouse Drive, a suspect forced his way into his girlfriend's residence with a handgun tucked in his waistband. He confronted a man inside, thinking the man was his ex's new boyfriend, and then shattered a beer bottle and used it to attack the other man, cutting the victim's arms severely. The suspect fled and the victim was taken to a hospital.

Sept. 11, 10:17 p.m.

An officer contacted a 28-year old West Capitol Avenue woman during a domestic disturbance with her live-in boyfriend of 10 years, with whom she had seven children. The woman struck the man's face and scratched his throat. She was booked.

Sept. 12, 3:40 a.m.

On Riverpoint Drive, police contacted a 42-year old man parked behind a closed business. The man was arrested for an outstanding warrant. 1.6 grams of methamphetamine were found in the car.

guage in the Preamble to the Constitution of the United States of America.

I lived in San Francisco when Diane Feinstein, as mayor, outlawed handguns. I'll never forget the photo in the papers of her turning in only one of the two handguns she and her husband owned (and the smaller one at that) while backed by two of her three taxpayer supplied bodyguards paid a mere $40,000 per annum each. (I was later told I couldn't get a "CCW" permit since I was "...not the right kind of judge or lawyer." Lawyer? Hell, I was a working musician carrying $50,000 worth of equipment in and out of some of the less than safe back alley's in the Bay Area after 2 a.m.. Why should I feel a need to protect myself?)

Approve Proposition 66

Of the several items Californians will be voting on in less than two months, Proposition 66 -- reserve 3 strikes/25 years-to-life for violent offenders -- seems to be one of the most important and far-reaching, financially, socially and from a public safety standpoint. Besides costing over $750,000 a year per inmate to house over half of the 7,500 non-violent "3-strikers" in overcrowded state prisons, continuing present policy also prevents taking many violent offenders off our streets and causes us to further expand prisons; hence, extra construction and higher annual maintenance. Better that we approve Proposition 66 and begin reversing this expensive trend.

Rather than perpetuating the "shoplift go to prison for 25 years" which is so costly, how about: (1) Reimbursing victims; (2) Rehabilitating/training shoplifters to become wage-earners and fellow taxpayers; (3) More effectively matching jobs and workers, including access to and from jobs; (4) Begin making more room for violent offenders using the one-time re-sentencing hearings to see if the time fits the crime and thus releasing many non-violent offenders for time served; and (5) Sharply reduce traffic dangers by many of those driving too fast and often causing wrecks and innocent deaths in so doing just to escape that 3rd strike and those mandatory 25 years for that shoplifting-like crime.

So, let's vote for Prop. 66 on November 2nd for tax savings and safer streets.
